

Regular Meeting of Berrywater F.W.U.A.

The regular meeting of the Berrywater F.W.U.A. was held at the home of Mrs. Leslie Richardson Sept. 4, with 15 members present. Members answered roll call with "Something I have learned about Associated Country Women of the World," and newflashes from head office were read and discussed.

Several articles of clothing were turned in for the parcel to be sent to Mental Health Association in December and a collection was taken up for spoons for the Community Centre.

It was decided to send the following resolution to the Sub-District Board meeting for consideration: "The Canadian cost of living has risen this month owing to increased food cost. To reveal to the Canadian consumer what part (if any) of these increases finds its way into the farmer's pocket. Be it resolved that these costs be broken down each month and the finding made available to the public, by radio, press, etc."

Three bulletins were presented during the course of the meeting: "Understanding Our World Neighbors," by Mrs. J. Smith; Health, Mrs. Allan Sinclair, and "Civil Defence" by Mrs. Ed. Richardson. Mrs. Archie Oldfield volunteered to be "foreman" for F.W.U.A. Week membership drive, in November.

It was decided to send $5 to the local "adopted" son in India, also gifts from the members to be handed in by September 15. This is necessary for the articles to reach their destination by Christmas.

Following adjournment of the meeting, the hostess and helpers

MacWha - Douglass Rites Solemnized

A quiet wedding took place at Central United Church in Calgary on Aug. 31, when Mrs. Olive May Douglass of Vulcan was united in marriage with James MacWha of Edmonton. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. S. Clark of United Church, Vulcan.

Mrs. Douglass who was escorted to the altar by her son, Stuart Douglas wore a tulle lace over pink taffeta afternoon dress topped with matching jacket with pink accessories.

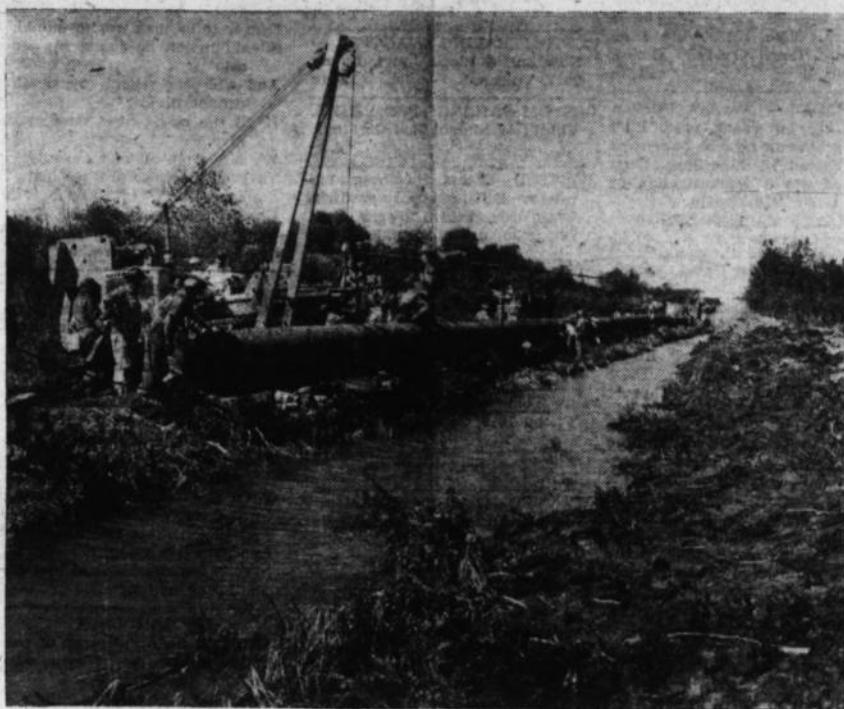

She was attended by her daughter, Mrs. Mary Haga of Vulcan, who wore a turquoise sheer over print afternoon dress with turquoise and white accessories.

Best man was Phil Savage of Calgary and ushers were James Phelan of Edmonton, nephew of Mrs. Douglass and Harry Smith of Calgary.

A reception for sixty guests was held in the banquet room of the Royal Hotel. Telegrams of congratulatory were read from Mr. MacWha's sister in Scotland also from friends in the north and south of the province.

Following a wedding trip to Banff and the United States the couple will reside at Suite 7, 11959 Jasper Ave., Edmonton, where Mr. MacWha is with the Civil Service.

served a dainty lunch. Date and place for the next meeting will be announced later.

PIPELINING through sloughs and muskeg has become almost routine for construction crews building the Trans-Canada Pipe Lines natural gas line from Alberta to Eastern Canada. Here in the vicinity of Carberry, Man., the line-up gangs works its way through a marshy spot on section five, followed by the welders, and the dope gang. The crews work from a road of tree trunks, planks and sand. Before this job is completed the pipe will be coated and wrapped, the ditch pumped dry and 6,500-pound concrete weights placed over the pipe to hold it in place.

THISTLE CONTROL

The past few wet years have favored thistle growth and spread, so that now there are lots of patches in many fields. It pays to kill these noxious weeds, since there is considerable less grain from a thistle-infested field.

Thistles are perennial weeds, that is, grow from the root the same as alfalfa or brome. Perennial plants must store food, which comes from the leaves, in their roots during the fall. They are thus vulnerable at this time of year which explains why even a mowing during September may be very hard on alfalfa or Canada Thistle.

Fall, being the busy harvest season, many men do not have time to destroy thistle growth on their summerfallow; and figure that it does not matter since the plants are only leaves that will be killed by frost in a month or so. These leaves make fat roots to come through the winter, survive spring cultivation and grow in next year's crop. Damp days in the fall, when it is impossible to combine, are not ideal for field either, but better to use them destroying thistle leaves than have an unprofitable crop full of weeds next year. Sow thistles are softer and more moisture loving than Canada thistles; also much shallower rooted, usually only 4" or 5". It is thus possible to bring most of the sow thistle roots to the surface for winter killing with a heavy duty cultivator. Should the land be liable to blow, or for other reasons tillage is not convenient, thistle leaves can be destroyed by a heavy spraying (12-16 oz) 2,4-D, but tillage should follow spraying in a couple of weeks for a more effective kill. Land badly infested with thistles needs to be summer-fallowed every other year.

Where there are only a few thistle patches in a grain field to be cropped again next year, these patches should be sprayed as soon as the crop is swathed or before since grain tramped down spraying in a thistle patch does not amount to much loss. After the crop is combined the sprayed patches may be rooted out with a cultivator or tiller. Next spring, sow early, and early barley such as Gateway, Olli or Wolf and spray crop to set back weeds. Figure on cutting by the end of July probably on the green side or maybe for greenfeed, but before thistles and wild oats have gone to seed. There is then time in August before harvesting to hit the thistles hard. A good stand of alfalfa tends to choke out Canada thistle, but is not so effective on sow thistle. Many men have cleaned up bad fields of thistles — it can be done.

D. CARLTON JONES was appointed assistant manager of production for Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas Company Limited effective Sept. 1. It was announced recently by E. L. Shafer, vice-president and manager of production. Mr. Jones joined H.B.O.G. in October of 1954 when he was named superintendent of natural gas utilization, a position he held until his new appointment.

He began his petroleum and natural gas career late in 1945 when he joined the special projects section of Canadian Western Natural Gas Company. In October of 1951 he began consulting work, as a project engineer, with Denton-Spencer Company Ltd., of Calgary.

Before entering the petroleum and natural gas industry Mr. Jones held engineering positions with the Procter and Gamble Company in eastern Canada and the Riverside Iron Company at Calgary. He also instructed at the Provincial Institute of Technology and Art, Calgary, and during World War II he instructed British Commonwealth Air Training Plan students at elementary flying schools in Alberta.

Mr. Jones is a native of Vulcan, Alta., and received his elementary and high school education there. He took technical training at the P.I.T.A. before attending the University of Alberta. He graduated from McGill University with his Bachelor of Engineering degree in 1937.

Mr. Jones is a director of the Alberta Gas Trunk Line Company. He is a member of the Association of Professional Engineers of Alberta, the Engineering Institute of Canada and the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy.

THE WEATHER

Harvesting became general again on the weekend. Rain on Monday afternoon and evening again halted harvesting. Tuesday remained mostly clear and a high of around 65. Showers were forecast for Wednesday and at time of writing a light rain was falling.

Plebiscite On Liquor Question

The plebiscite which is to be held in Alberta on the liquor question will be taken Oct. 30. This will be the question on which electors vote, "Should additional types of outlets for the sale of beer, wine and spirituous liquor be permitted if such outlets are later approved by a local vote?"

For the cities of Calgary and Edmonton there will be a second ballot on the question, "Should mixed drinking be allowed in beer parlors in Calgary (or Edmonton) and the surrounding area?" The term mixed drinking means purchase and consumption of beer by both men and women in a beer parlor.

WHY USE FERTILIZER?

Yield increase is not the only basis on which use of fertilizers should be judged. Dr. C. F. Bentley, Associate Professor of Soils at the University of Alberta, suggests that this belief is neither realistic nor fair to the fertilizer.

Sometimes overlooked is the effect of fertilizer on ripening. Earlier maturing grain crops usually follow use of a phosphate fertilizer. This earliness may vary from three to ten days depending on rainfall and temperature, but the average for all grain crops in Alberta is from four to six days earlier from the use of phosphate fertilizers. This is particularly important in a slow, late season when hastened maturity may mean the difference between a sound and a frozen crop.

Weed repression is another advantage of phosphate fertilizer application. Effects again are available, says Dr. Bentley, but on the average, fertilizer does help to keep down weed. There are two reasons for this, he advises. Fertilizer placed with the seed at seeding time get the plant away to a good start; in fact, in some places this type of application is known as starter treatment. Not only does the fertilizer cereal crop start earlier but greater crop growth occurs which tends to smother the slower growing weeds. A well known example is the use of late-seeded, fertilized Olli barley for wild oat control.

Another advantage reported by Dr. Bentley is that phosphate may have some value in reducing lodging. It is not uncommon to see fertilized cereals standing straight and undamaged alongside badly lodged grain. The probable reason here is the effect of the fertilizer in providing a satisfactory nutritive balance to produce strong-stemmed plants. Where nitrogen is needed for grain crops it can also be important in improving the nutritive balance and its effect on the growing cereal can be readily observed by the richer, healthier green of the growing crop.

Two Killed, One Injured, In Two Car Collision

Residents of Vulcan and surrounding districts were shocked and saddened Monday afternoon to learn of the sudden death of John Hanna, well-known old-timer of the district, in the collision of two automobiles, near noon, some five miles north-west of Vulcan. Also killed in the tragic accident was Earl Dennis, whose home was at Pincher Creek and who was employed by the Brinkerhoff Oil Drilling Co. Hurt in the accident was little Susan Christensen, 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. V. (Skeez) Christensen of Nanton and granddaughter of Mr. Hanna.

There were no eye witnesses to the accident, which hurled both cars into the ditch and against a telephone pole. But the drivers of two trucks of the oil drilling company that came upon the scene of the accident, went to a nearby farm to phone for a doctor and for the police. Dr. A. D. Tompkins answered the call immediately, but was unable to do anything for the two men, both of whom had died instantly. The little girl, who had been thrown several yards into a field was rushed to the Vulcan hospital, where it was found she was suffering from a broken leg, face and head injuries.

After investigation by the R.C.M.P. and Coroner Dr. Tompkins it was decided that an inquest would not be held. Both cars were total wrecks.

Mr. Hanna was born Nov. 25,

1896 at Falmouth, N.S., coming to the Vulcan district before there was a town here. His parents settled at High River. With the exception of the time he spent overseas in World War I, he had lived here ever since coming west. He was with the R.C.A.S.C. and served in England and France.

He was a charter member and Exalted Ruler of the B.P.O. Elks, Vulcan, having received his 30-year pin last year; he belonged to Samaritan Lodge, I.O.O.F. and to the Canadian Legion, No. 121, in which he received his 25-year pin two years ago.

Surviving to mourn him are his wife, Margaret at Vulcan; one step-daughter, Mrs. Ruth Christensen, Nanton; five grandchildren; five sisters, Mrs. Bessie Eckmeyer, Orion; Mrs. Ethel Wadley and Mrs. Ray Campbell, Calgary; Mrs. Winnie Lighbody, Vancouver, B.C. and Mrs. Beatrice Dimmock in Nova Scotia. Four brothers, Wendell, Vulcan; Ashley, Lethbridge; Norris, Lomond and Gordon at Black Diamond.

Mr. Dennis is survived by a wife and three children of Pincher Creek.

Funeral services will be held Saturday, at 2:30 from the Vulcan United Church.

Pass with caution... impatience can cost you your life, warns the Canadian Highway Safety Conference.

Deitz - Kennedy Rites at Calgary

A lovely double-ring ceremony took place at the Faith Lutheran Church at Calgary on Aug. 16, at 4 p.m., when Miss Lois May Kennedy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Harold Kennedy of Ensign, became the bride of William Edward Deitz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Deitz of Milo. Officiating at the ceremony was Rev. R. O. Olson. The church was decorated with sprays of pink and white glads.

The bride given in marriage by her father wore a floor-length gown of white lace over taffeta and the matching lace headpiece held her floor-length veil of illusion net, she carried a crescent cascade bouquet of white glads.

The attendants were: Senior bridesmaid, Miss June Kennedy of Calgary, as sister of the bride, who chose a waltz-length gown of mauve nylon net and lace with matching picture hat and carried a crescent cascade bouquet of pale pink glads. Junior bridesmaids were Miss Marjory Kennedy of Ensign, also a sister of the bride, and Miss Sharon Phillips, who chose waltz-length gowns of white embroidered nylon net over pale blue taffeta with matching blue nylon headpieces, they carried crescent cascade bouquets of pink glads.

The groom's attendant was Robert Thomson. Ushers were David and Donald Deitz, twin brothers of the groom.

The organist and soloist was Mrs. R. O. Olson who sang the "Wedding Prayer".

After the ceremony a reception was held at the Airways Patio Room. The bride's table was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake, flanked by bouquets of pink and white carnations.

Rev. R. O. Olson was master of ceremony and the toast to the bride was given by Charles Both, the bride's uncle.

For their honeymoon spent in Spokane and Couer d'Alene, Wash., the bride's traveling costume was a two-tone gray tweed suit with black accessories and a corsage of mauve spray mums.

The bridal couple will make their home at Milo, Alta.

Evanchuk - Hartung Wedding Rites

In an early afternoon ceremony in the St. Johns Lutheran Church, which was decorated in white and pink carnations and white candle lights, Rev. Deksell united in marriage Miss Mary Ann Hartung, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Hartung of Champlon and Henry Donald Evanchuk, only son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Evanchuk of Yorkton, Sask.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white net. The bodice of her gown was covered with tinted sequins and seed pearls. The jacket was of fine lace with lily-point sleeves. Her finger-tip veil of illusion net fell from a headpiece of sequins and pearls. She carried a bouquet of pink sweetheart roses. The bride's jewelry was a matching ear-ring and necklace set, a gift from the groom.

Matron of honor was the bride's sister, Miss Dorothy Hartung and the bridesmaid was Miss Joan Williams. Miss Hartung was flocked in a mauve gown of lace and net with a matching head-piece. Her bouquet was of yellow carnations.

Miss Williams was flocked in a yellow chiffon gown with a matching headpiece and gloves. Her bouquet was of mauve carnations. Both gowns were waltz-length.

Alfred Hartung and Gary Weisner were best men. David Hartung and Arne Moen ushered the guests to the pews that were decorated with white satin bows.

The mother of the bride wore a lace sheath of dusty rose with matching hat and gloves. Her corsage was of white roses.

A reception followed at the Lone Pine supper Lounge, where the bride's table was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake and candle lights. Alfred Hartung proposed the bridal toast. Miss Joan Williams was in charge of the guest book.

For her honey-moon trip to different points of Saskatchewan, the bride chose a grey suit and complemented by matching accessories of black. Her corsage was of pink delight roses. Upon their return the couple will make their home in Calgary.

The Laborer's Hire

A career as a leader of labor unions may not have much appeal for the average youth, but in the United States, at least, it can produce handsome financial rewards. Recently "Fortune" published an article on union organization, in which the salaries of presidents of leading unions were listed. The highest salary shown was that of George M. Harrison, president of the railway clerks, who gets $60,000 a year. Nearly in the same salary bracket were David McDonald, who gets $50,000 annually from his steelworkers, and John L. Lewis, whose miners contribute the same amount to him. Nineteen other union presidents in the list draw salaries ranging from $25,000 up to $55,000. All these, as well as the comparatively poor ones like Walter Reuther, who gets only $22,000 a year, are treated quite liberally in the matter of expenses, which amount for some to almost as much as the salaries they draw.

The unions that pay these salaries are nearly all international, which means that Canadian members are contributing a share of their weekly wages to help pay them. Perhaps they are contented with the situation, and are convinced that the salaries are earned. Yet, as Canadians, they have no chance of working up to the presidency of their union than they have of being elected president of the United States. A Canadian might become head of the Canadian branch of his union, but probably at a much lower scale of salary and expense allowances than his big boss gets. He would not have the opportunities for lucrative sidelines by which some union leaders in the United States can add to their earnings.

When unions, many years ago, were small and struggling, there might have been some advantage to Canadians in the foreign connection. It is worth considering, now that the connection is virtually foreign domination, whether the advantage might not now lie in becoming independent, and saving the wage tribute that flows southward across the border.

The Case of The Curious Milkman

The Case of the Curious Milkman may be said to have begun in Winnipeg just 10 years ago this month with the man in question losing his job.

He lost it, not because his employers were in any way dissatisfied with him (quite the contrary), but because he had fallen foul of a handful of his fellow unionists. It wasn't that he didn't pay dues or otherwise exhibited disinterest in the affairs of the union; the trouble was that he was too interested.

He wanted to know what happened to union dues (this was in 1947 — and his was a Teamsters' Local), and he was critical, at Local meetings, of sloppy administration on the part of the officials. Clearly, he was a tiresome individual, and something had to be done about him. So the executive committee of the Local "suspended" him.

It then advised the company — "ordered" might be a better word — that the recalcitrant member could no longer be employed since the Local had a union shop agreement which required that all company employees must be union members "in good standing."

Unfortunately for the executive, the milkman fought back; the members of the Local gave him their backing and refused to ratify the "suspension" decision. But he remained "suspended" — and out of his job. So he fought back some more. He sued both the executive committee and the Local for damages in the provincial courts. And the courts, in due time upheld him, declaring the suspension to have been without authority and therefore null and void.

He was further declared to have been the victim of civil wrong on the part of the defendants, and he was duly awarded damages to the tune of $5,000.

By now the case had assumed the character of a veritable David and Goliath battle: the milkman versus the mighty International Brotherhood (!) of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen & Helpers of America. This was rebellion that had to be fought right down the line, lest it be followed by others. The defendants appealed.

Eventually, the case reached the Supreme Court of Canada. Its decision, lately handed down: endorsement of the lower court's judgement, together with some blistering comment about "the corruptions of power," "the demanding of unquestioning loyalty," and the "domination of strong personalities."

The milkman had won. It had taken him 10 years but he'd won. And it is a win for free men everywhere, who must ever cherish and maintain their fundamental liberties, seeking redress from injustice even unto the highest court in the land.

Even if it involves entangling with groups of men as powerful as any in the community, some of whom seem to think that they have inherited the prerogatives of the feudal barons and medieval nobles.

But there will be many who will ask: Why should any Canadian have to resort to the courts and exhaust legal process merely to assert, and have confirmed so basic a right as that of freedom of contract between a man and his employer?

In other words, the right to work for whomsoever he may please just as long as both he and his employer are happy with each other? —Industry

Cutworms On The Increase

August and early September is the critical time for cutworm control and observations by crop insect specialists at Lethbridge and Saskatoon indicate an increase. Every year cutworm forecasts are prepared by the Science Service Laboratories so that farmers may be advised of the trend. From Entomologists L. A. Jacobson and Howard McDonald this year comes a word of warning.

The present forecast is preliminary only, the specialists advise, and more information will be forthcoming following a check of the moth population during August. There is every reason to believe that cutworms are on the increase, however, and where their presence was noted the following recommendations should be applied.

Keep off the fallow from the beginning of August to the middle of September, is the advice. The crust that forms on undisturbed summer-fallow is the objective here. Cutworms will not lay their eggs in fields that are trusted and free from weeds, but the entomologists caution that breaking the crust by allowing livestock to run on the field can be just as serious as tillage at this time. Whether it is pale western cutworms in the prairie regions or red-backed cutworms in the parklands the basic practice is the same. Keep off the fallow during August and the first half of September.

If the summer-fallow is well worked at the end of July it is unlikely that the weeds will become troublesome before cultivation is resumed. For control of the pale western cutworm, the surface on the fields should not be disturbed until the middle of September even if weed growth does develop, the entomologists say. Where the red-backed cutworm is the chief pest, tall weed growth at the end of August is better destroyed since the red-backed cutworm moth often lays its eggs in a weedy field. Where cutworms are present in winter wheat areas, growers are advised to delay seeding until as near September 15 as possible.

There has been a marked increase in red-backed cutworms in Alberta this year, Mr. Jacobson reports, and since the same conditions affect both species an increase in pale western cutworm populations is also indicated. In the dry years cutworm numbers increase; in the wet years a decrease occurs. This applies particularly during the month of May and June when the larvae are active. Less than ten wet days points to an increase, ten to fifteen wet days suggests no change, and over fifteen wet days indicates a decrease in cutworm populations. A wet day is any day in May or June on which rain has fallen to the extent of one-quarter inch or more.

For many years this standard has been used with success. The thinking is that when conditions are wetter, cutworms do more of their feeding above ground. When feeding above ground they are more subject to attacks by parasites and predators and fewer survive to perpetuate the species. In addition to weather records, larval surveys and moth surveys keep the entomologists informed of the trend.

BANKERS ADVISE

ADVERTISING

Merchants who do not advertise are invited to read the following from the American Bankers Magazine, as it might give them a new slant on business, your own business, as well as the matter of building up your town.

"No business man in any town should allow a newspaper published in his town to go without his name and business being mentioned somewhere in its columns. This does not mean you should have a whole, half or even a quarter page ad in each issue of the paper, but your name and business should be mentioned, if you do not use more than a 2-line space. A stranger picking up a newspaper should be able to tell what business is represented in a town by looking at the paper. This is the best possible town advertiser. The man who does not advertise his business does an injustice to himself and the town. The man who insists on sharing the business that comes to town, but refuses to advertise his own is not a valuable addition to any town. The life of a town depends on the live, wide-awake and liberal advertising business men."

TAXES! TAXES!

(Stettler Independent)

The fact is the common man and woman cannot turn around without being taxed by our federal or provincial governments. They are taxed from the time they get up in the morning to the blessed hour in the evening when they get into bed. And even in bed they are taxed for the bed and mattress and the clock upon the table. They are taxed for the books they read in bed and for the light that illuminates the printed pages. The sum of taxation mounts up just as inexorably as the ticks of the clock, whether they are waking or sleeping or snoring or dreaming about the good old days when the governments got taxes from the rich.

Taxes are necessary in our complex society and our progress depends upon an equitable system of taxation, but in Alberta there are taxes that are gross injustices when the government can make $22 handouts to all adults over 21 years who have resided here for five years.

On that vacation trip, drive as courteously in other communities as you would have others drive when passing through your town, advises the Canadian Highway Safety Conference.

Agricultural Service Board Notes

H. S. BURNS, Supervisor

Thistles have become in a very short time our No. 1 noxious weed in this part of Alberta, unless in the opinion of some wild oats should occupy that exalted position. Our Agricultural Service Board feels that for the next few months a special campaign on the control of thistles should be conducted. We feel that the control of thistles is not achieved by trying to destroy them after they have matured in a crop, but their control for next year and the year after should be commenced now by better farming and cultivation practices and then by chemical control after the crop is growing if it shows signs of becoming weedy.

The first of these series of short talks on thistle control is written by K. H. Walker, District Agriculturist of Wheatland Municipality adjacent to us on the north and appears elsewhere in this issue, others will follow by various authorities on the problem, and we also hope to have the experiences of practical farmers themselves who have been successful in controlling and eradicating these very unpopular perennials, Canada and Sow Thistles.
